

JOHNSON EXHORTS THE PROGRESSIVES

Third Party Organizes in California, According to Programme.

NO SURPRISES SPRUNG

Fight Over the Senatorial Toga of Perkins Is Yet to Come.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 6.—From every congressional district of California the Progressives of the state met today in party conference, repudiated their one-time affiliation with the national Republican party, cheered their leader, Governor Hiram W. Johnson, and entered immediately on the business of a temporary organization.

So much was on the cards and there was no surprise about it. So far as the politics of the state go, the most important development of the day was the governor's failure to make any declaration of his own intentions.

Earlier in the day the word had gone forth that an important announcement was to be expected at the close of the governor's address. The nature of it could not be forecast, but presumably it bore on the senatorial situation, as it affects the next candidate of the party for governor.

Fight Over Toga.

Francis J. Heney and Chester Rowell of Fresno are both avowed candidates to succeed Senator Perkins, whose term expires next year, and who will not be a candidate for re-election. There has been a feeling since the governor's address that he would be expected to be composed before it went to the primaries, and many leaders who argued this way, urged Governor Johnson as the strongest man to represent the party nationally.

Opposed to this group was another, which argued that Johnson was needed in the state to hold his party together and which was determined to run him for governor again, but when the governor's set speech at the convention was finished and he lowered his voice to conversational tones, and when every ear was pricked up to catch the expected announcement, there came merely an exhortation to all Progressives to stand together and fight hard.

"So far as I know, and I believe it is the truth," said Mayor Lindsay of Los Angeles, formerly chairman of the executive committee of the late Republican state central committee, "Governor Johnson has not indicated to any living person his intentions—whether he will run for senator or governor, or neither."

Johnson's Oration.

In delivering the oration of the day, Governor Johnson cast aside his notes, and though following closely the argumentation and exposition of his prepared address, amplified, heightened and in passages entirely altered the phraseology.

There was a sharper edge to the personal allusions, and a more insistent emphasis on the gravity of the present situation, which the governor again and again called a crisis. He quoted from Lowell's lines, beginning, "Then to stand with truth is noble," in the poem entitled "The Crisis," and in the peroration of one passage he declared: "God's new Messiah has come to separate the sheep from the goats in California."

Repeatedly he urged his hearers and followers to "fight, fight, fight." He spoke of giving and taking blows, of the "fanatical desire" sometimes necessary to carry a cause through to triumph, and the poor rewards reserved for those whose part in the world's affairs was that of cowardice.

OFFENDING TROOPS EVACUATE ZABERN

Viceroy Returns and Townspeople Believe Trouble Is Over.

ZABERN, Germany, Dec. 6.—Headed by its energetic commander, Colonel von Reuter, the Ninety-ninth infantry regiment, whose officers have caused so much strife between the military and civil authorities in Alsace, left Zabern today. Half of the men go to Haguenau, sixteen miles northeast of Strassburg, in the forest, and the other half to Bitsch, a small fortified town at the foot of the Vosges mountains, in the north of Alsace.

The viceroy of Alsace-Lorraine, Count Charles von Wedel, returned today from his conference with the emperor, and the Alsatian papers gladly interpret the fact that he has not retired from office as an indication that he received from the emperor the necessary guarantees that the military will not interfere with civil rules in Alsace-Lorraine.

BERLIN, Dec. 6.—The imperial chancellor, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, returned today to Berlin after conferring with the emperor on the Zabern incidents. He issued a denial of a published statement explaining his unsuccessful appearance in parliament on Wednesday. The statement had been attributed to Under Secretary of State Arnold Wahnshaffe, who was quoted as saying that the chancellor was "ill" when he spoke in parliament, and had therefore forgotten to mention the emperor's interposition against the military authorities at Zabern.

"This was the reason," according to the alleged Wahnshaffe statement, "for the chancellor's failure to make clear to the members of parliament that the emperor had ordered the army officers to keep within the law and had sent Major General Kuehne to Zabern to take charge of the situation."
